Castleberry Lions Drop Last Home Game

The Castleberry Lions baseball team played their last home game on Tuesday, April 27 at the Camp Carter Athletic Complex. Despite it being Senior Night, the Lions could not pull out a victory against the visiting Argyle Eagles.

The Lions fell behind quickly in the top of the first inning. The first two batters reached base with the help of a CHS error and a walk. The next batter grounded out to third-base man Fernando Orazaga but it did move up the Argyle base runners to second and third. An infield single then scored both base runners for a 2-0 lead. Two of the next three batters walked which then loaded the bases for the Eagles. CHS starting pitcher Jose Ortiz kept the damage to a minimum when he got the final out by getting the Argyle batter to ground into a force out and left the bases loaded.

The Eagle pitchers were very tough on our Lions. Starting Argyle pitcher mowed down the first three Lion batters, striking out all of them in the bottom of the first inning.

During the top of the second inning the Eagles managed to score four more runs. They were helped again when the Lions allowed two of the first three hitters to reach base (one was hit by a pitch and the other walked). This was followed by back-to-back doubles which scored 3 runs. The other run scored on a CHS throwing error.

In the bottom of the second the Lions had a chance to get back in the game with a big inning. Ortiz and Felipe Soto led off with back-to-back singles. Orazaga followed with a walk. This loaded the bases for the Lions with no outs. But unfortunately, the Argyle pitcher dug in at this point and proceeded to strike out the next three CHS batters and left the bases loaded with no runs scored.

The top of the third saw a couple more CHS errors lead to another run scored by the Eagles. In the bottom of the third however, the Lions would strike back and get on the scoreboard. Lion Isaac Cereceres hit a line drive down the first base line. After another Lion was struck out Cereceres advanced to second on a pitch that got past the Argyle catcher. AJ Silva drew a walk which put Lions on first and second base. Then Ortiz smoked a pitch deep into left center field for a double which drove in both Cereceres and Silva. Unfortunately, that was all the Lions could get across the plate as the inning ended with two more Lions striking out.

Both teams were held scoreless in the fourth inning. But the Lions were slowly running out of arms to throw at the Eagles. In the top of the fifth Argyle scored 3 more runs to go ahead 10-2. Then in the top of the seventh inning they added 6 more runs. The Lions, who obviously had trouble all night against three different Argyle pitchers, continued to struggle. They struck out three times in the fourth, two times in the fifth, three times in the sixth and three more times in the seventh inning. All combined, the 21 outs recorded in this 7-inning game, 19 were recorded by Argyle pitchers striking out CHS batters.

The Lions never gave up despite this and fought very hard all night. However, they eventually fell to a very good Argyle team 16-2. All hail our baseballers as they have concluded their season but especially those seniors who have finished their careers at Castleberry High School.

Waverly Park Garden Club Members Work to Refresh Community Center Landscaping

Members of Waverly Park Garden Club gathered at the Benbrook Community Center/ YMCA recently to refurbish and refresh plantings in the front entrance garden area of the facility. Many of the shrubs, perennials, annuals and even native/adapted plantings suffered freeze damage during the extreme low temperatures of February.

Ten bags of cedar mulch were used to top dress the area, holding moisture and discouraging the growth of weeds as well as giving the garden its finished look. Club members appreciated the many complimentary remarks from passing Benbrook residents, regularly maintain the entrance garden as part of their commitment to community service.

Several of the plants have already begun to put out new growth, including red yucca flower buds and the greening of the trailing rosemary bush. Spring may be arriving leaves and debris, trimmed overgrown or slowly this year but it's definitely on its freeze-damaged shrubs and trimmed roseway.

Club members removed fallen oak rosemary bush. Spring may be arriving leaves and debris, trimmed overgrown or slowly this year but it's definitely on its freeze-damaged shrubs and trimmed roseway.

New Ways Families With Kids Can Go Green

Having kids can mean having a lot of stuff, not all of which is made from eco-friendly materials. However, if you're like many parents, you want your children to have a clean, healthy planet to live in when they grow up. Going green while parenting might sound challenging, but it's definitely not impossible. These tips and insights can help get you started:

Reusable Food Packaging

With a little creativity, you can ditch the plastic utensils, baggies and single-use beverage containers at lunchtime. To substantially reduce your family's plastic waste, switch to organic, reusable lunchboxes featuring partitions and tightly-fitting, leak-proof lids. Keep kids hydrated with easy-to-clean stainless steel water bottles or thermoses. Finally, rethink the types of products you buy most often. Rather than opting for snacks pre-packed in single-serving plastic, instead buy favorite items in bulk and wrap smaller portions in reusable, compostable wrapping.

Eco-Friendly Play

Some of your children's favorite toy brands are already going green, making it easy to make playtime eco-friendly. When shopping for outdoor play or children's gifts, make note of packaging that displays use of recycled materials on the label.

Composting

Composting is a simple way to reduce waste and teach children about how they can positively impact the environment. Start by setting up a compost bin and work with your children to identify ingredients that can be added to it. A good compost recipe includes materials such as dry leaves, household waste like vegetable scraps, coffee grounds and eggshells, and a layer of soil. Add some water and watch as science comes to life. Kids will love seeing their compost turn to soil over time and allowing them to be hands on throughout the process teaches them the concept of recycling in a realistic and relatable way.

With a few simple tweaks, parents can make choices that better protect the environment, while setting a great example for kids.

Cinco de Mayo and Gen. Ignacio Zaragoza by Dr. Ken Bridges

On May 5, Mexico celebrated one of its most important patriotic holidays, known simply as Cinco de Mayo. It marks the victory of Mexico over France at the Battle of Puebla in 1862. It was an improbable victory against overwhelming odds. Above all, it is a day remembered for courage.

This special day for Mexico is a day made possible by the daring and valor of a native Texan, Gen. Ignacio Zaragoza.

Zaragoza was born in March 1829 in Presidio la Bahia, which is the current city of Goliad, about 90 miles southeast of San Antonio. He was born into a prosperous and respected family of landowners and politicians. His uncle, Erasmo Seguin, had served as mayor of San Antonio and helped draft Mexico's 1824 constitution which established it as a republic. Seguin had also helped Stephen F. Austin with his early colonization efforts. Seguin's son, Juan Seguin, also served as San Antonio mayor and was a captain in the Texas Army during the Texas Revolution.

When Zaragoza was five, his family moved from Texas to Matamoros on the southern banks of the Rio Grande. In 1844, his parents enrolled him in a seminary in nearby Monterrey. Two years later, however, he left the seminary, feeling he had a different calling. When the Mexican War started later in 1846, Zaragoza attempted to enlist in the army but was not allowed to join.

By 1853, he joined the local militia in Nuevo Leon. Impressed by his skills and daring, he was commissioned as an officer when the force was incorporated into the regular army. In 1857, civil war again erupted in Mexico, a conflict known as the Reform War. Gen. Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna was controversial even in Mexico, provoking feelings of love, fear, and hatred. Zaragoza sided with the reformers against Santa Anna during the war, fought in several important battles, and rose through the ranks. After the war ended in 1860 with Santa Anna in defeat, a new constitution was enacted and Zaragoza was appointed Minister of War.

Mexico, however, was still in the midst of chaos. It had been embroiled in civil wars almost since its independence in 1821. One government after another was overthrown. Threats of coups, assassinations, and uprisings were constant. This chaos had allowed its international debts to soar. And the countries it owed the most money to, France, Great Britain, and Spain, were determined to collect.

France had one of the most powerful armies in the world at that time and was led by the ambitious Emperor Napoleon III, nephew of his famed namesake. Napoleon III sent his armies to Mexico in early 1862 to subdue the country. Zaragoza resigned his ministerial post to take command of the Army of the East and set to fortify army positions at Puebla, east of Mexico City.

French forces attacked Zaragoza's troops on May 5, 1862. Zaragoza was badly outnumbered against better-trained and better-supplied troops but had planned carefully, taking advantage of his troops' uphill and fortified positions. The French assault failed at Puebla, with the loss of nearly one thousand French troops to a loss of only 86 for Mexico.

The victory pushed French forces back on their heels and left their battle plans in tatters. Within days, President Benito Juarez declared that the Fifth of May would be celebrated every year afterward in honor of the victory.

Zaragoza briefly returned to Mexico City to coordinate with Juarez and was celebrated as a great hero. When he returned, a typhoid fever epidemic was spreading among his troops. Zaragoza fell ill and died on September 8 at age 33. The loss devastated the country.

Though Zaragoza won the day on May 5, Mexico would still lose the war. France regrouped and seized control of Mexico City within a few months, installing a puppet government. But Mexico continued to fight on, with Juarez moving the capital across the country, invoking the victory at Puebla and the memory of Zaragoza and the Battle of Puebla to urge Mexico to continue to resist.

The United States ordinarily would have objected to the French occupation of Mexico but was distracted by the chaos of the Civil War. France considered intervening in the Civil War on behalf of the Confederacy in order to defend their occupation of Mexico, already a costly one because of Puebla, but decided against it after Great Britain declined to intervene.

Fighting against France continued for several more years before Mexico finally repelled the French in 1867. Zaragoza is still considered a great hero across Mexico to this day, honored with statues and streets named for him. His image was even on the 500-peso note for a time. Several small communities are named for him. Cinco de Mayo is still one of the most popular celebrations in Mexico to this day, with celebrations even in Texas and the United States.
