The North Central Texas Council of Governments is collaborating with military and community leaders for Joining Forces, a Regional Joint Land Use Study (JLUS) that will identify and recommend land use strategies that support continued military capabilities. During a JLUS, the cities and counties surrounding the military installation work with the installation to plan and carry out specific actions that will promote compatible community and economic growth. Join us at one of four open houses to learn more about the study recommendations and provide feedback. Additional information can be found at www.JoiningForcesNTX.org.
